Professor Birdsong's 157 Dumbest Criminal Stories

Synopsis

How dumb can a criminal be? Dumb enough to make you laugh out loud at these true stories of really dumb criminal activity. Leonard Birdsong is a law professor who specializes in criminal law who has collected 157 of his most favorite stories about dumb criminals. Criminals can be dumb and sometimes they are so dumb as to be really funny. This book is a collection of stories about dumb criminals from around the United States including the Professor's home state of Florida, criminal dummies from abroad, and drunken dummies from all over. All the stories are true and include Professor Birdsong's witty commentary. The book is sure to deliver some great belly laughs like the one about a transvestite purse snatcher who loses her water-filled condom which she used as a fake breast or the "drunken dummy" who called 911 to report a slot machine stole his money. Customer Reviews

The book reads like a scholarly paper. Professor Birdsong's 157 Dumbest Criminal Stories attempts to share brilliant material but the delivery is so deadpan and lacking in comedic presentation value that the book falls flat. Have you ever heard a person who had a really great joke but their delivery was so bad the comedy just died on the vine. That's the problem with Professor Birdsong's 157 Dumbest Criminal Stories. The stories if told by a less clinical story teller might have been more entertaining. It takes a very special professor to tell a funny story using clinical language and methods. Professor Birdsong's 157 Dumbest Criminal Stories shares its comedic jewels in a far too clinical dispassionate way. The silly purely human factor of the stories is not amplified. Stories like this should be told as if you are in a bar room not a class room. Law Enforcement often does a far better job of sharing funny criminal stories because; officers must find the humor in such painful ugly experiences to survive in their chosen profession. Law Enforcement Officers often have just enough people skills to relate the funniest aspects of human failings they encounter on the job. The academic world isolates the good professor from the subjects he speaks of in his book in ways that distance him from the situation. The distance an academic keeps from his subject matter is different than the kind of distance a law enforcement officer uses to keep his perspective. Clinical distance reduces the most funny aspects of the human to that of white mice engaging in conditioned responses. That clinical distance that isolates Professor Birdsong from his subject matter also isolates him from the funny bones of his audience.
